Words of Welcome

Airtec 2024

Bavaria is home to a unique symbiosis of outstanding companies operating in the aerospace sector and cutting-edge research institutions. I am therefore delighted that participants from all over the globe are coming to Augsburg for Airtec 2024 to experience first-hand the future of aerospace and air mobility and to share views and ideas on new developments. It is here that progress in zero emission aviation and opportunities offered by AI for future air mobility are presented, but innovative defence technologies and the increasing significance of the space economy will also be playing a central role – and all of this at the highest level with the relevant experts!

Augsburg is the ideal venue for such an event. This was already demonstrated last year when Airtec drew more than 4,000 trade visitors and guests to Augsburg – the city of the Fuggers – from 31 nations and from a wide range of fields in the aerospace industry. It was a huge success and the same is sure to happen again this year, because Airtec offers the best opportunities for the transfer of knowledge and ideas – paving the way for progress and innovation!

I wish all participants inspiring and successful days at Airtec! Welcome to Augsburg!
